Sebastian loves to read and draw superhero comics. Not only that, he actually is a superhero himself! The only problem is that no one wants to believe him. Sebastian's parents are convinced their son needs to see a psychologist. And he forces Sebastian to keep a diary. Sebastian relates his adventures in the first person and illustrates them with his own drawings.

CONTENT

Sebastian "The Genius" von Nervkoeter, Barbara "Action-Barbie" Schwemme, Martin "The Chameleon" Koslowski and Martin's imaginary friend Dieter "The Rugrat" form the superhero team "The Amazing Three and a Half." They would walk through fire for friends in need.

Because you can't save the world every day, the three and a half superheroes first try to put a stop to the evil tricks of the nasty physics teacher, Dr. Knarz. He wants to hold Ms Daffodil accountable for the science materials missing from class 6A. Unfortunately, the superheroes' efforts to capture the culprits are foiled by the bad guys in class 6B.

In addition to his activity as a superhero, Sebastian also has to deal with family challenges. His Aunt Hella is about to celebrate her thirty-fifth birthday, for the fifteenth time. This rich aunt has made it a tradition to put the entire family to work for days preparing her birthday celebration, and this time the wealthy woman has moved in with Sebastian's family.

THE AUTHOR

Frank Schmeißer was born in 1968 in Hilden in North-Rhine-Westphalia. After successfully completing his training as a bookseller, he worked for a year in a bookshop in Rome. He currently lives in Cologne and writes scripts for a variety of television programs. Bad Guys Everywhere! was his first children's book; it was recommended by New Books in German (Issue 30, Autumn 2011).

THE ILLUSTRATOR

Jörg Mühle studied illustration in Offenbach and in Paris. He has been working as a designer and freelance illustrator since 2000.
