CONTENT

Now that his parents have separated, Jonas and his mother have moved. At first he assumes his summer vacation will be boring, but then he meets Clara, who is a secret agent. The cases she has solved so far have not been especially spectacular, like finding missing keys. But now she thinks she's on the trail of an actual criminal. A young guy in the neighborhood just started eating licorice candies at a remarkable pace. Her suspicion: he could be the gas station thief who a while back stole not only all the cash, but also the entire inventory of licorice, from a gas station. In no time, Clara makes Jonas her agent partner. Among other things, they get themselves hired as dog sitters for the suspect. But when Jonas goes into his apartment to have a thorough look around, things get dangerous. Clara rescues him at the last minute, and her father, who has figured out what the children are up to, gives both of them a stern talking to. In the end, however, the results of their sleuthing do lead to the thief's arrest.
