CONTENT

Lord Gordon, Queen Victoria's favourite dog, lives in Buckingham Palace and sleeps on silk cushions. That is, until one day his friend, kitchen boy Colin, is accused of theft and flees the palace. Lord Gordon is convinced that he'll have the case solved before it's time for his second breakfast. But the trail leads the little dog into London's dark alleys and takes him to the limits of his abilities.

THE AUTHOR

Alexandra Fischer-Hunold comes from Düsseldorf and completed training in banking before she decided to study German and English. After working in a travel book publishing company and the birth of her daughter, she exchanged her desk in the office for one at home, where she writes books for children.
