A new, humorous series that takes place in a dream setting of an idyllic farm and touches on themes including friendship, family, and adventure.

ABOUT THE SERIES

A big farm near a small city, with a large, beautiful lake nearby. The parents of the main characters are siblings, or related by marriage. This organic farm complex also has a farm shop and space for animals to live out their last days, and visitors can come experience their holidays on the farm.

CONTENT

Old saddles in the attic – what a thrilling discovery! The kids of Cornflower Farm are excited. Unfortunately, none of the adults has any interest in acquiring horses again. Then Mai and the others have a fabulous idea. They can just put the saddles on the wooly pigs and cows, and train them to be riding animals!

THE AUTHOR

Anja Fröhlich has been writing children's books for twenty years and loves marvelling at things for professional reasons alone. Since her son is grown and her husband is a travel journalist, she gets the chance to do that in the remotest regions of the world – just like the donkey and the squirrel. But Anja enjoys being home in Cologne just as much, where she has lived since studying film studies, art history and psychology.
