A café that delights all the senses, with its very own dwarf pony as a mascot

ABOUT THE SERIES

Alma's family owns a café with a very unique feature: it's a café where people and animals are welcome, and the spunky pony Einstein is their mascot! Alma has a big heart and a lot of confidence, and there is no end to the fun and adventure at the Pony Café.

CONTENT

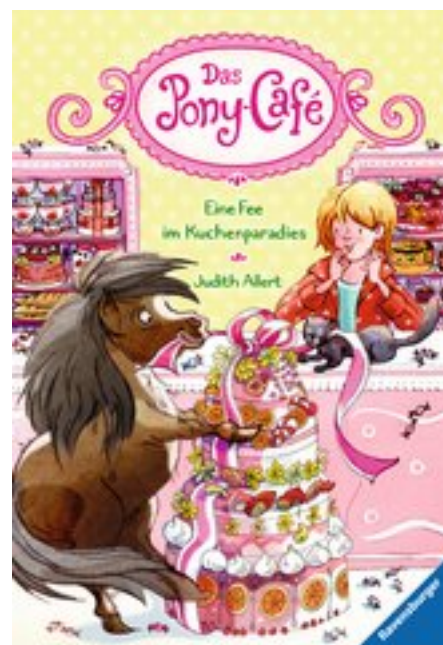

Alma and her friends are not looking forward to vacation at all. For days it has been raining cats and dogs, and it's too dreadful just sitting around indoors! But then they are saved from the miserable weather: A neighbor, Mr. Wunderlich, needs ideas to spark the novel he's writing, another neighbor hires her as a fish whisperer, and they have to find a way to trap a very clever swindler who has been hanging around the Pony Café!

THE AUTHOR

Judith Allert was born in 1982 and studied modern German literature in Bayreuth, where she also published her first children's books. In 2009 she completed her master's thesis on the topic of fantasy writing for children and teens, and she has been a freelance author ever since. Today the author lives on an old farm with her husband, dogs, cats, horses, hens, and wooly pigs.
